And now a few words from me:

Hi! I'm Benji, and my foster mom says that I'm a true gentleman. I'm 10 years young and everyone says that I'm a perfect fellow who is gentle, affectionate and full of charm. I love going for car rides and I'm a snuggle-bug who loves to burrow under blankets in true Dachshund fashion! I'm looking for a furever home where I can be surrounded by love in my golden years, and because I really enjoy being with my humans it would be best is someone was home with me most of the time. Would you like to meet?

And now a few words from my foster family:

Benji thrives on companionship and would happily spend his days curled up beside you or following you from room to room. If you're looking for an affectionate soul who never wants to be away from you, he's your guy. He experiences separation anxiety and may bark, howl or chew on his bedding or crate if left alone. Benji suffers from some arthritis, and also has a history of incontinence, which is well managed with medication and limiting water before bedtime. Because of this, he would do best in a home where someone is around most of the day, or where patience and a commitment to managing his routine are a priority. In return, you'll get unwavering loyalty, endless cuddles, and a little dog who just wants to be near his people. If a calm, loving, senior companion could be the missing piece in your life, this sweet fellow is ready to meet you.
