And now a few words from me:

They call me the king of cuddles, but you may call me Ody! I love to be snuggled on blankets and have a good cuddle on the couch, in your lap, against your leg, or in the dog bed beside you. I'm happiest when warm and with my family close by. I also enjoy a nice walk, but not in the cold or rain. Poor weather is offensive, unacceptable, and offends me on a personal level. When it's too cold to get my energy out on a walk, enrichment is my jam. Kongs, snuffle mats, and puzzle feeders let me use my doggy sense and brings me so much joy. In true Dachshund fashion I can be a little stubborn and often have a lot to say. You never have to worry, I'll tell you when I'm excited, when I'm unhappy, when suspicious characters walk by the house, and especially when I think I've earned a snack. My foster family says I'm "food motivated", but I just really love food and will do anything for a treat. I cannot wait to meet my new family!

And now a few words from my foster family:

This sweet, sassy little guy has been waiting for a year for someone who appreciates a dog with big personality in a compact package. Ody is the definition of a lovable sass-ball: full of personality, opinions (about everything), attitude, and overflowing with affection. But beneath the sass? Once he gets comfortable with people, he adores affection and thrives on a close bond with his person. If you're looking for a companion who wants to be part of your daily life — from movie nights to lazy naps on the couch — he's your guy. Being your little shadow. He wants to be part of your world and will reward you with endless loyalty and laughs. Ody doesn't just want a home; he wants a person. Once he finds that, he will give you his whole heart. This little cuddle bug has waited long enough.

About His Care: Ody has some allergies that result in a skin condition. This means he needs weekly medicated baths, daily medication, and a strict diet. He is a champ about it, but he will treat the sidewalk like a free buffet if permitted.
