And now a few words from me:

Hi! I'm Pumpkin! If I could describe myself, I'd say I'm a very happy little girl who thinks life is pretty amazing. There are walks to go on, things to sniff, toys to play with, treats to chew, sunny spots to nap in... and, most importantly, humans to love! I'm playful, very energetic, affectionate and very excited about pretty much everything. I love going on walks and exploring the world with my nose. It's important that I get a lot of exercise because I'm a very high-energy gal. There are just so many interesting smells out there! I absolutely love people and other dogs, and I can be a little submissive when meeting new canine friends. Mostly, I just want everyone to like me! I'm happiest when I get to be close to my humans, follow them around and be part of whatever they're doing.

And now a few words from my foster family:

Pumpkin is a very joyful little dog! She'll steal your heart in no time as she's super playful, energetic and affectionate. She's very social and friendly towards humans and other dogs (even a little submissive). She loves going on walks and she's great with the leash. However, you have to be careful when walking outside as she tends to eat whatever interesting bits she can find along her way. At home she loves lounging in the sun, burrowing herself in blankets, playing tug of war and chewing on yummy dog treats! She'll also just want to be near you at all times! Pumpkin isn't completely house trained yet but she's very good on training pads. You'll need to take her out several times during the day and maintain a good routine so she learns that outside is best! She's responding well to training so far. Like many Dachshunds, she barks whenever there's something going on outside the house or when she hears strange noises, so she is not suitable for an apartment. Perhaps most importantly for Pumpkin, she needs someone who will be able to keep up with her energy and who is able to provide her with lots of exercise, as she is a high-energy dog. She can become restless when left on her own for long periods of time, so in her case, a tired dog is a happy dog. She does well in her crate but will shred her toys, so very durable Kong-type toys are best for her. She appreciates when people are home with her, but she's been good at staying by herself at home for short periods of time. She would be suitable for a family with children old enough to play safely with a dog.
